I look back now, I look back at that kid and I'm glad it was me, the gods up there laughing and urging me on, having such a god-damned good time about it all, me in the small room,

Running that pen across the paper, no automobile, no woman, no job, no food, just wine and ink and paper, the door closed, my mind running along the edge of the ceiling, along the edge of the night sky, I just didn't know any better and I did.
